

Roll to Play

Roll to Play is an app that allows users avoid the overwhelm of decision-making when it comes to playing board games. Users will be able to randomly find a game to play based on their game night situation, overcoming any overwhelming decisions. This is the loading screen and logo for the app, featuring a pair of dice and a playful font.

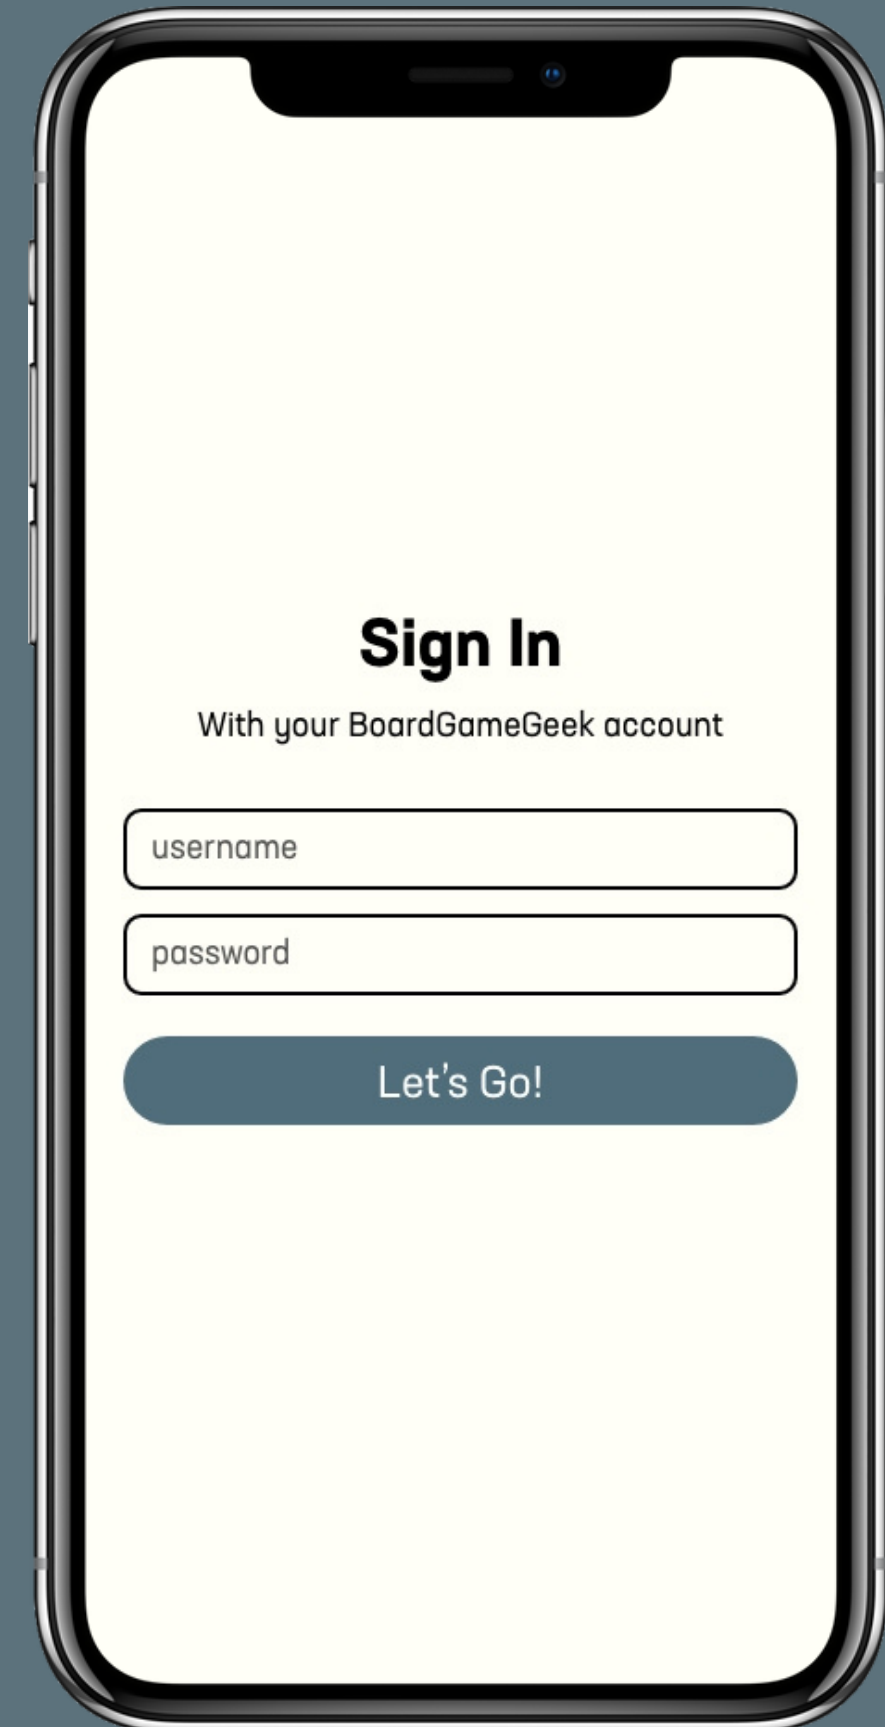

Sign In

First, users will need to log into their BoardGameGeek account.

BoardGameGeek is a board game cataloging website that allows users to track what board games they own and browse other potential games.

By logging in with their account, the app will be able to access and stay up to date with the games in their collection.

Sign In
With your BoardGameGeek account

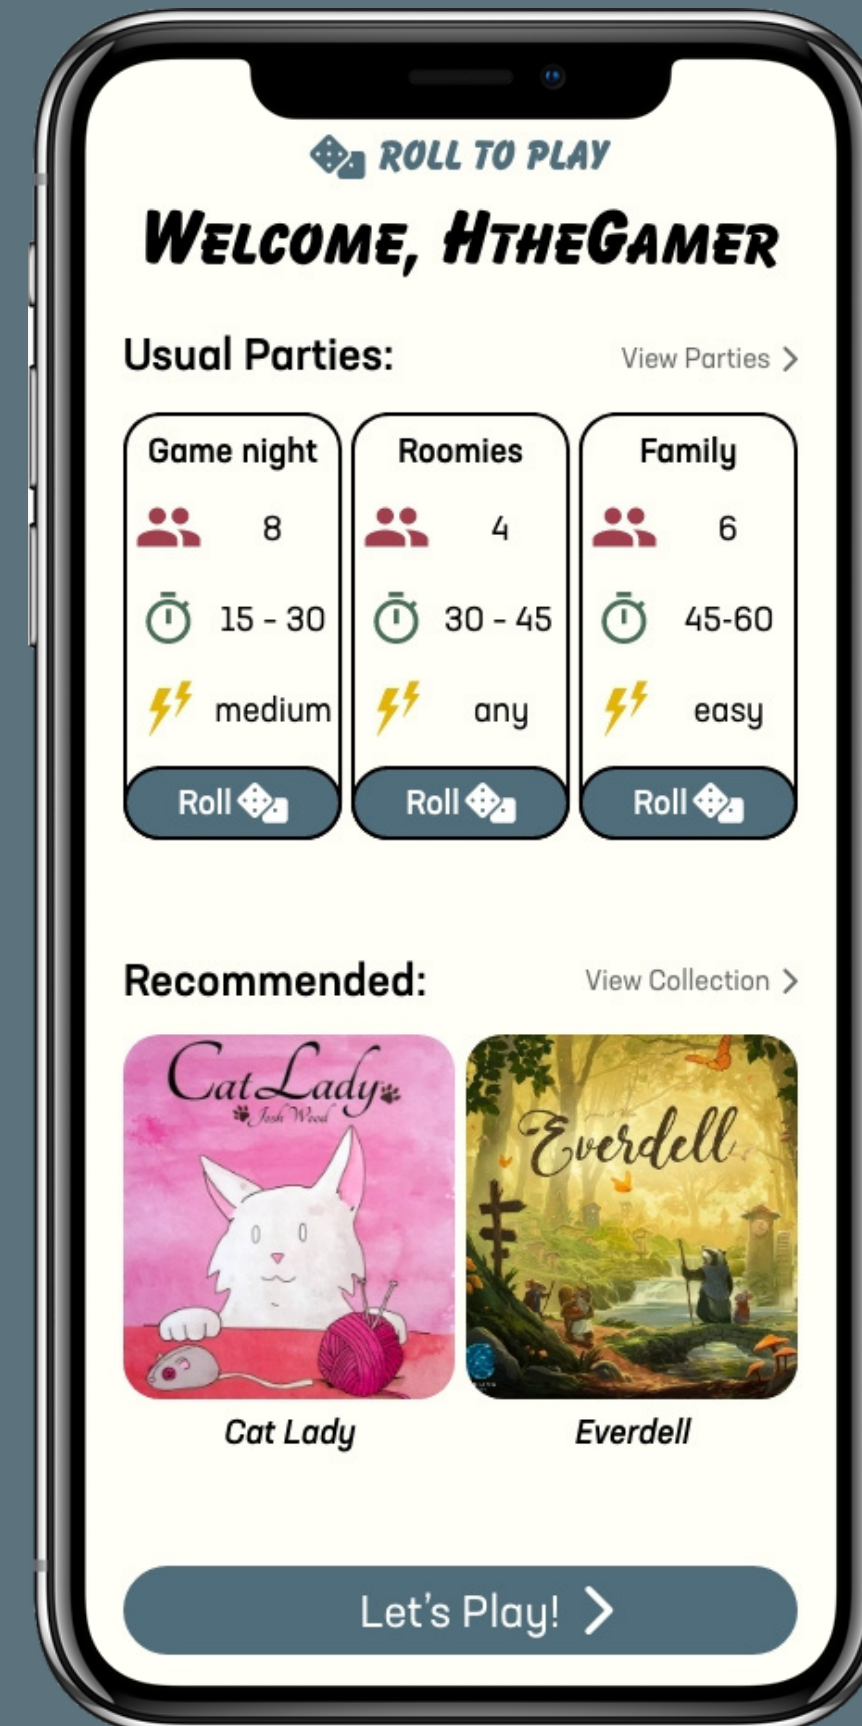

username

password

Let's Go!

Home Page

On the home page, users can view easy-to-access information or can tap "Let's Play" to begin their roll. Under "Usual Parties," players can reroll their common rolls and under "Recommended" users can see their recommended games for the day. They can also view all their parties or all of their collection from this page.

Let's Play

Here, the user will use the dropdowns and sliders to select the number of players, length of time you want to play, and the difficulty level. The user can select "any" for the time and the difficulty level if they are indifferent. At the bottom, they can see a recap of the information they've input. Then, they tap "Roll!"

ROLL TO PLAY

LET'S PLAY

How many players do you have?

4 players

How long do you want to play?

30 - 45 minutes

What difficulty level do you want?

easy medium hard expert any

I want to talk during the game, but I'm okay with the occasional break to strategize.

Recap:

4 players

30 - 45 minutes

Medium difficulty

Roll

You Rolled

Now, the user will see their result! They will see a photo of the box so they know what it looks like, the title, and a description. Underneath they can find the player count, time to play, and difficulty of the game with the matching icons and colors used throughout the app. If they don't like the choice, they can reroll, or they can tap play and log the play on their BoardGameGeek account.

